

I do not believe that requiring sellers of radio equipment to retain records on that equipment is in the best interest of the country. I doubt that there will ever be funds to actually use this information, if it were collected.